

Remus Ene is a Romanian lawyer with extensive expertise in competition law as well as in the field of environment, oil & gas and energy legislation. From his position as a Managing Associate in Pachi and Associates, he has been involved in several projects related to the energy and oil and gas sectors (including unconventional gas), in aspects related to the pre-authorization procedure of exploration and construction works, regulatory and licensing matters necessary for obtaining oil and gas exploration and production rights, assistance during the Environmental Impact Assessment procedures (EIAs), access issues and land securing.

In the field of competition, Remus Ene has extensive expertise in providing assistance in relation to mergers' control, structuring and implementation of various business models, both horizontally and vertically, in compliance with the competition legislation, as well as with respect to the analysis of the day to day commercial behaviour and clients' agreements for the prevention of breaches in the Romanian and European competition legislation. Remus has also assisted clients before the Competition Council in all stages of investigations initiated by the authority for potential breaches of the competition legislation as well as in filing and sustaining complaints against anti-competition behaviours of competing undertakings on the market.

Remus co-authored several international comparative legal guides, focusing on the Romanian regulatory framework in the energy and natural resources, competition and product liability fields.

Remus has a post-graduation degree in Competition Law from King's College in London and a Bachelor Degree in law and administration from the "Dimitrie Cantemir" University.
