

Natasha Fielding is editor of Argus' daily European Natural Gas publication. Argus is the leading independent provider of market intelligence to the global energy and commodity markets, and Argus' daily European gas service provides news, analysis and price assessments that are widely used by a broad spectrum of market participants.

Natasha has edited Argus' European gas report for over three years and has been covering the gas market at Argus for over seven years. Natasha initially reported on northwest European markets, with a particular focus on Germany, the Dutch TTF and the UK NBP hubs.

Natasha holds MA and MPhil degrees from the University of Cambridge, where she studied German and French language and culture.